One of the most difficult decisions in any type of genealogy publishing is deciding when to stop researching the various family lines and when to publish your findings for others to be able to make use of. Having previously done several other books I can honestly advise that every possible family line has never been researched by every available avenue. This gets proven more readily with each passing year. New genealogy information becomes available with each passing day. It is now believed that Man's knowledge and available information doubles every eighteen months.

This book is published knowing that it is incomplete. I acknowledge that I have yet to research many of the various family branches in this book. A few years ago I wrote Ancestors and Relatives of Reverdy Lewin Orrell, IV, which detailed my son's complete ancestry. Some of his direct line ancestors were traced back thirteen generations. This current series of books doesn't go back in time; rather, they come forward. Each book begins with one of our son's 'end of the line' direct line ancestor and brings that ancestor's line to the present day. Therefore the reader will find our son, Reverdy Lewin Orrell, IV as a descendant in every book in this series. Obviously, his direct line from the progenitor in each book is very well documented. Some of the other descendancy lines from the progenitor have not been researched at all.

Why then, might you ask, is this series of books even being produced, if they are not completely researched and documented? The answer is quite simple - all of the family trees and branches, all of the genealogy data, all of the various source notes - do absolutely no good to anyone else when they are stored in my computer databases, census databases, and file cabinets. While it is my intention to eventually work on many of these lines again; I can't be sure that each project will ever be completed. Therefore, while I am young enough, in good health, and have the necessary funds, I am doing this series of fourteen books. There are several other family lines that are absolutely huge; some have been very well documented by other researchers. There are a few other lines that I will be publishing at a later date.

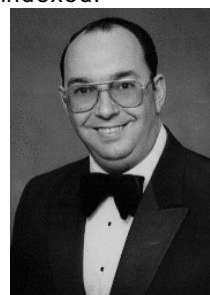

I do not consider myself an expert on any of these lines. Many persons helped me out by researching several of these lines before me. In all cases I have added to their research. Please note that the notes are not rewritten and polished. The books in this series are intended to aid and assist other genealogists who are interested in these various family lines.

Each book in this series is published on a very limited basis. A copy of each has been placed in the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., Daughters of the American Revolution Library in Washington, D.C., Latter Day Saints (LDS) Family Library in Utah, the Maryland State Archives in Annapolis, Maryland, and the Maryland Historical Society in Baltimore, Maryland.

An index of each book appears in the back. Please bear in mind that only descendants, their spouses and their spouse's parents are indexed. Persons mentioned in the various notes are not indexed.

NOTES for Annie follow: Difficult to obtain her name. Taken from the death certificate of her son, William F. Kirmes. Survived her son William Kirmes. Annie Lange(?) Kirmes Hoerder McNeal is buried with her second husband, William Hoerder in Baltimore Cemetery.

Herman died before 23 Apr 1907.

NOTES for Herman follow: Source: death certificate of his son, WILLIAM F. KIRMES.

It appears that Herman F. Kirmes might have had a brother named William Kirmes. There is a William Kirmes(s) family throughout the Baltimore City Directory. In the 1880 and 1900 Maryland Census there is located a William G. Kirmess (1880) and a William Kirmes (1920) with a wife Pauline. No children are ever listed. The 1920 census states this William Kirmes was 73 years old and came to America in 1883. His wife is also listed as coming to American in 1883. This would set this particular William Kirmes's date of birth about 1847 which is probably to the date of birth of Herman F. Kirmes.

Letter from Tina Wunner, Presseck, Germany, 7 November 1983 to a Mrs. Wildensteiner:

Many thanks for your letter. I am finally getting around to answering it. Last summer I had to guide many visitors. Amongst them was a lecturer from a University in Philadelphia. I always mention the Wildenstein ancestors, the ones who built our precious church here.

Concerning the history of your coat of arms, red with white cross beams, there isn't much I can tell you. However, in the later and larger coat of arms, after 1948, the 'Wettritt of Presseck' was added (two horseheads with high held weapons). A brief explanation of the Wettritt of Presseck (Horserace of Presseck) follows:

For decades there was a conflict between the Evangelical (Protestant) and Catholic churches. Your ancestors joined the Protestant church, therefore the church in Wildenstein was Protestant. But the first Bishop of Bamberg (Catholic) repeatedly sent soldiers to the church to exert his influence. It was not enough and the church remained Protestant. To settle the dispute over whether it should remain Protestant or become Catholic, it was decided to have a race between two horsemen from different points of the church. A Catholic horseman raced from the Castle of Elbersreuth and a Protestant horseman raced from the Castle of Wildenstein. The rules were that whoever reached the church first would establish the church denomination. Both horsemen arrived at the same time, but the Protestant broke a window in the church and threw his hat inside. It was therefore determined that the church should be Protestant.

The Protestant horseman was a man whose last name was Frank, and he went with the last Wildensteiner, of Castle Wildenstein, to Kulmbach. Sons of Frank stayed here and own riding estates. A woman of Frank's generation was the wife of my great uncle. In Frank's coat of arms, the Wettritt of Presseck is also included. It is smaller then in the Wildensteiner Coat of Arms however, because Frank was ordered to participate in the race for the Wildensteiners.

Copies of this background are not available, but I can tell you a little about it. Excerpts include: Ernest Rudolf of Wildenstein died in 1563. He built the choir loft in the church and had the walls covered with paintings. We inherited a handmade chalice which we still have. People who are descendants of the canmaker employed by your ancestors came by and took pictures of it. On the crypt of Christoph of Wildenstein (father of Rudolf) a crossflower in sandstone was discovered in 1960 during restoration work. At the time it was a high honor to have a crossflower on a tombstone. Only the bottom part of the cross remains and it is too bad that the upper part is lost. The cross is fastened to a wall. I always point it out to the people I guide as anyone buried with a crossflower was a very prominent person. Ancestors of the Wildensteiners are also buried in the church in Marktredwitz.

Page 3 explains the paintings on the wall of the church - all holy pictures. During restoration a skull was found. It is believed to be of Anna Von Wilderstein, nee Nufflinger, who died in 1516 because her tombstone was found on top. In the meantime I heard of a forester named Wildensteiner and will inquire about his ancestors.

Also have a hard copy of the following Wildensteiner information: Approximately 3 1/2 kilometers south of Presseck lies the summer resort Wildenstein. Upon the so called Wildenstein Cliff, which climbs up the Steinach Valley in two steep and jagged terraces and is only accessible from the village, stood at one time Wildenstein Castle. Now only a few overgrown, crumbling battlements and earthworks are visible. The stones of the ruin were carried away by farmers and used to build or repair their homes. The castle could not have been large, since the two cliff tiers provided too little room; however, this made the position so much more commanding. Below the castle lay the Steinach ravine formed by the Wildenstein and Steinach cliffs, and which, according to an old myth, the god Thor created with a blow from his magic hammer so that the river could continue freely.

The Wildensteiner family has long since died out and only the name of the town Wildenstein, the gravestones in the churches at Presseck and Grafengehaig and documents remind of it. Yet still vivid in the local memory is the myth concerning a Wildensteiner man and the gravedigger's daughter. According to legend the old Wildenstein cemetery, which lay between the castle and the village, holds the remains of the squire of Wildenstein and his lover, a poor, but very pretty daughter of a gravedigger. Both wished to marry, but the squire's father would have none of it. At a rendezvous in the cemetery he surprised the pair and struck them down in a fit of rage. Their bodies were buried in an out of the way corner of the cemetery. Still today one is supposed to meet the lovers at their grave at the midnight hour. Excavations in 1911 confirmed the existence of this cemetery.

The founder of the Wildensteiner line was Nikolaus von der Grun. His descendants called themselves Wildensteiners von der Grun (wild rocks of the green) and beginning about 1400 generally became known as Von Wildenstein. They were of the same lineage as the Reitzensteins and like them had the coat of arms of a silver diagonal on a red field. The Wildensteiners, Reitzensteins, and the Radeckers, who stemmed from a common ancestor, held at the beginning of the 14th century an extensive and continuous estate in the north forest, which presumably included basically the Presseck and Schwarzenback jurisdiction with the Schwarzenstein fortress, then Naila with the farmsteads of Marlesreuth, Selbitz, Culmitz, and the Radeck Castle. From a 1318 Document we know that Bishop Wulving (1304 - 1318) granted Nikolaus von der Grun the rights to the Castle of Wildenstein with the villages Rutzenruth, Braunersreuth, Grafengehaig, Dietmarsreuth. However, it is uncertain whether the castle was built in 1318 or earlier. Likewise, an entry in a book of feudal tenures, dated 1343, states that Albert von Waldenfeld relinquished to Nikolaus in return for an annual fixed supply of weapons (tools) from his forge. The Wildenstein forge for weapons was, therefore, already in operation. According to an old legend, it was to have been established by Thor. The Castle of Wildenstein, which was the seat of authority for Wildenstein - Presseck, did not last long. Disputes about the capital court as well as about the extend of the duty to open up the fortress were evidently the occasion of a schism with the Bishop of Bamberg. The latter knew well how to profit from the financial difficulties of the Wildensteiners, in that he settled a debt of the Wildensteiners to Hans Schlegler in the amount of 3000 pounds and moreover, discharged further 3500 pounds to the fortress. The Wildensteiners had to leave the castle and mortgage it to the Bishop. Not until 1395 could he redeem it under the condition 'he should wait upon the bishopric with it and keep open house to all in distress and wars, and all watchguards of the tower and all guards, which Conrad Wildenstein von der Grun and his heirs have and acquire, shall swear to that, to open to us and ours as often as we are in distress...!'

Konrad von Wildenstein was a son of Nikolaus. As long as his castle was mortgaged, he lived on his estate in Naila. (from Reitzenstein, family history, p. 268). At the time of the peasant revolt Jorg von Wildenstein possessed the fortress above the Steinach. He died in 1533 without heirs. His brother Erhard followed him; however, he had his residence in Presseck. With his brother Jorg and a part of the Franconian nobility, he was involved in the Absbergisch trade. After his death (1554) his son Frederick William took over the Wildenstein, but he later transferred his residence to Elbersreuth. The Wildensteiners fell into debt and after Frederick William died, his creditors took possession of Elbersreuth. His brother Hans Pankraz did take over the feudal tenure, but he had neither property nor enjoyment. He too died in 1592 and with him finished the oldest line of the Wildenstein family (Reitzenstein, family history, p. 276).

In the course of the years and decades the debt became increasingly oppressive. To save the feudal estates, which had fallen to ruin, from total destruction, but on the other hand to free themselves from the unattainable burden of debt, the Wildensteiners carried on the sale of the entire Presseck jurisdiction with the castles and manors of Wildenstein, Schlopp, Elbersreuth and Heinersreuth and all the villages, farms, woods and mills belonging with it. By 1690 they offered the possession to Karl Frederick Voit von Rieneck for 56,000 florins, 360 florins (Leyhauf?) and three large measures (800 - 1,800 liters measure depending on locality) of Wurzbürger wine of 1688 vintage as payment, but eventually sold to the prime bishop Marquard Sebastian von Bamberg on the 8th of July, 1693. Not until October 1, 1697 did Karl Frederick Voit von Rieneck acquire the whole Wildenstein estate from the hand of the bishop. Count von Rieneck's official staff resided in the Heinersreuth Castle. The castles at Schlopp and Elbersreuth were left to decay. Among the overseers the severe Johann Jakob Siebenfreud is still alive in the folk memory today and the legend has condemned him to eternal restlessness because of his harsh rule. It lets his ghost wander over the crossroads and startle woodsmen and travelers with his titterings. On his own burial day, so goes the tale, to the shuddering of the mourners, he loudly made fun from the castle window of the clergyman during the benediction. When they wanted to reassure themselves and opened the coffin, they found an old broom instead of the corpse.

In 1806 the jurisdiction of Presseck was annexed to the kingdom of Bavaria and a new sovereign jurisdiction was erected in 1812. After the death of the last Rienecker in 1823 the Wildenstein dominion reverted back to the Bavarian crown. On September 12, 1823, King Max Josef I granted it from now on the Heinersreuth knight to his financial minister Baron Maximilian von Lerchenfeld as proof of gracious acknowledgement of his services rendered in an important position with effort and full devotion and loyalty. The sovereign jurisdiction was abolished and a patrimonial jurisdiction of second class was established, which was deeded to the state in 1834. Thus vanished the last rest of the former Presseck sovereign jurisdiction.

Very close to the little Wildstein castle Maximilian von Lerchenfeld built in the years 1824 - 1827 a castle, which with its simple style fit very nicely in the landscape. It sits on a semi round terrace, which rises gently from the so called Leichbrettergraben (ditch of the boards of the corpse ?) and which gives view to the street Helmbrecht's - Presseck. The only decoration of this ordinary rectangular building are the coat of arms of the Wildensteiners and Lerchenfelds. Mighty linden trees, chestnut trees and ash trees give a frame to the picture, lavender colored, white and red rhododendron groups however give the color. Maximilian von Lerchenfeld died in 1843. The Heinersreuth fiefdom on August 30, 1920, came under the law for dissolving feudal estates; but only in the year 1926 did the implementation of the dissolving start. It was finished in July 1928. The part of the estate, which did not fall under the reversion to the state, was taken out of the feudal estate bond and changed into free property. During the time from 1921 to 1923 the old little Wildenstein Castle was enlarged through additions and reconstruction according to the plans of the architect Resisliger, Bayreuth. A wonderful open stairway leads to the palace terrace and to the main entrance, which is decorated with the Lerchenfeld coat of arms and with the number of the year 1922.

She headed westward again in July, took part in the attack on Wake Island (18 July), and arrived at Leyte 14 August. Following the surrender of Japan she assisted in the evacuation of Allied Prisoners of War from Nagasaki. Remaining on occupation duty until 9 November 1945 she then proceeded to Pearl Harbor and the United States. She moved to Port Angeles, Washington, 15 January 1946 and reported to the Commander of the 19th Fleet for inactivation. On 18 May 1946 she was placed in commission in reserve at Puget Sound Naval Shipyard and on 29 October 1946 went out of commission in reserve.

Carl died about 1924.

NOTES for Carl follow: Carl Kirmes is located in the 1900 MD Census (Vol 6, ED 40, Sheet 10, Line 1). He is shown as being born Feb 1872 in Germany and living on Wrenwood Ave in Baltimore with his wife Johanna M. (b. Aug 1874, Germany) and daughters Minnie I. (b. Dec 1894, MD) and Anna M. (b. Carl's wife Johanne is listed in the 1924-1925 BCD. She is shown as Jonanne Kirmes (widow Carl) and living at 813 W. Cross Street. It therefore appears that Carl E.H. Kirmes died before 1924. The last listing above that we can be sure of is 1919-1920. The Carl G., laborer in 1922 is living at 815 W. Cross and is probably a son. Also we find a Evelyn C. Kirmes in 1924-1925 at the same address with Johanne Kirmes. In 1930 we find Johanna M. (widow Carl) at 4241 Seidel with Carl G., chauffeur. It would therefore appear that the Evelyn C. and Carl G. are children.

It should be noted that Carl is not located in the 1920 Maryland Census, however his wife and family are located in ED 364, p. 1. She is listed as married but not husband is listed.
